Newswise — While most people know a bit about Jupiter and its amazing moons, new research has revealed that there are 50 more undiscovered moons. This is the result of a team of astronomers led by Dr. Michael Wong from the Johns Hopkins University, who first observed the new moons using the Hubble Space Telescope. "It's like looking at the map of a city and finding out that there are five more buildings in the part that you weren't expecting to see," said Wong. In this case, "the unexpected" is Jupiter's northern hemisphere. These new satellites of Jupiter were found after a systematic search around the planet. The team analyzed existing data as well as new, never-beforeseen Hubble images. They found that Jupiter has seven known moons and six previously unknown ones. The 16 new moons make the giant planet's total number of moons to 25. "A lot of planet-hunting instruments are not quite as powerful as the Hubble Space Telescope. As a result, many of the new moons we see around Jupiter would have been missed in previous searches," explained Dr. Wong. The discovery of these new moons is the result of a painstaking process that takes careful analysis and a lot of computer time. They are especially challenging because of the planet's extremely fast rotation. This movement makes it extremely difficult for the moon to be seen. But because Jupiter's rotational speed is so slow, the moon will remain visible for weeks at a time. The distribution of the new moons is not yet clear. They are found to be orbiting Jupiter in two groups - those that lie close to the planet and those that lie farther out. The researchers will continue to search for more moons, in particular on the other side of Jupiter. Their findings are described in the print version of the journal Icarus.Q: Using CSS to make a button "jump" across a container I've got a container DIV with a width of 1000px. Our previous studies showed that parathyroid hormone (PTH) gene was able to inhibit hypercalcemia induced by cultured adenoviral vector expressing full length PTH gene (Adv-PTH) to host rat. To evaluate whether PTH gene can be expressed in the target muscle tissue, we constructed an AAV-8-PTH plasmid, which contained expression cassette with SV40 promoter, CMV enhancer, hCMV-T promoter and PTH gene. The expression of human PTH cDNA after transfection of HEK293 cells was identified with Western blot, and we further examined the transfection efficiency of human PTH cDNA in the skeletal muscle cells of rat. The results showed that human PTH was detected in transfected HEK293 cells. In addition, human PTH expression was also identified in the transfected myoblasts and myotubes of rat by Western blot. Our study suggests that AAV-8 vector expressing PTH can be developed as a new therapeutic approach to the hypercalcemia induced by adenoviral vector expressing full length PTH.Ludovica Araújo Ludovica Araújo (born 15 January 1953) is a Brazilian sports shooter. It is not because I am a huge advocate for immigration. I'm not. However, in addition to being pro-immigration and antioppression, I believe in border security, due process, and building a coalition with both sides of the aisle. You see, if what you really want is abolishing
